'Ganesh : Remover of Obstacles', creative and playful by nature, is a project which aims to abolish the existing border between Northern and Southern Cyprus by providing participants with an opportunity to give voice to peace and reconciliation. By creating works with an elephant as the common symbol, peace takes on a recognizable and tangible form that can be experienced by all.

Not only local Cypriots, but communities worldwide are invited to take part in this event. It therefore stands as an example of how contemporary art can be used successfully as a way of celebrating cultural differences, and promoting long lasting freedom.

Having studied Fine Arts at the University of Aix-en-Provence in France and with a Masters in Art History from the City University of New York there is no doubt that Rose Marie Gnausch is capable of undertaking an international art project of this scope and size.

One needs only to look at her CV to see how active Ms. Gnausch is. Her dedication to peace, reconciliation and education is apparent in the number of projects she has accomplished, and positions she has held internationally.

We commend this initiative by Ms. Gnauch, and wish her the very best with her endeavors.
